Angelina, thanks. One correction to my questions, which I'm sure you all picked up, is that in item 3, the second sentence should say, "I know that we disagree with Alvey's comments about JW in the REDACTED decision, but it is true that Wilson's own literature says that JW is not intensive enough for students w/ dyslexia."

REDACTED

Thanks.

Dawn et al: We need to get some structure around this case as soon as possible. I know that we have a staffing tomorrow with lots of people, but I don't know which ones are important and which are not. Lots of them can't be there anyway. Here are a couple of threshold questions that should help narrow things down:

3. With respect his reading issues, what have we proposed? I know that we disagree with Alvey's comments about JW in the [REDACTED] decision, but it is true that Wilson's own literature says that JW is intensive enough for students w/ dyslexia. In the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] hearing, Dottie did her level best to convince him that it nonetheless was, but could not. Frankly, I had the impression from Dottie that in that case, she would liked to have had "Big Wilson" to offer, but didn't.
